the town

RT. 28 NJ READING

there are places i'll remember all my life though some have changed, some forever not for better some have gone and some remain.
all these places had their moments.

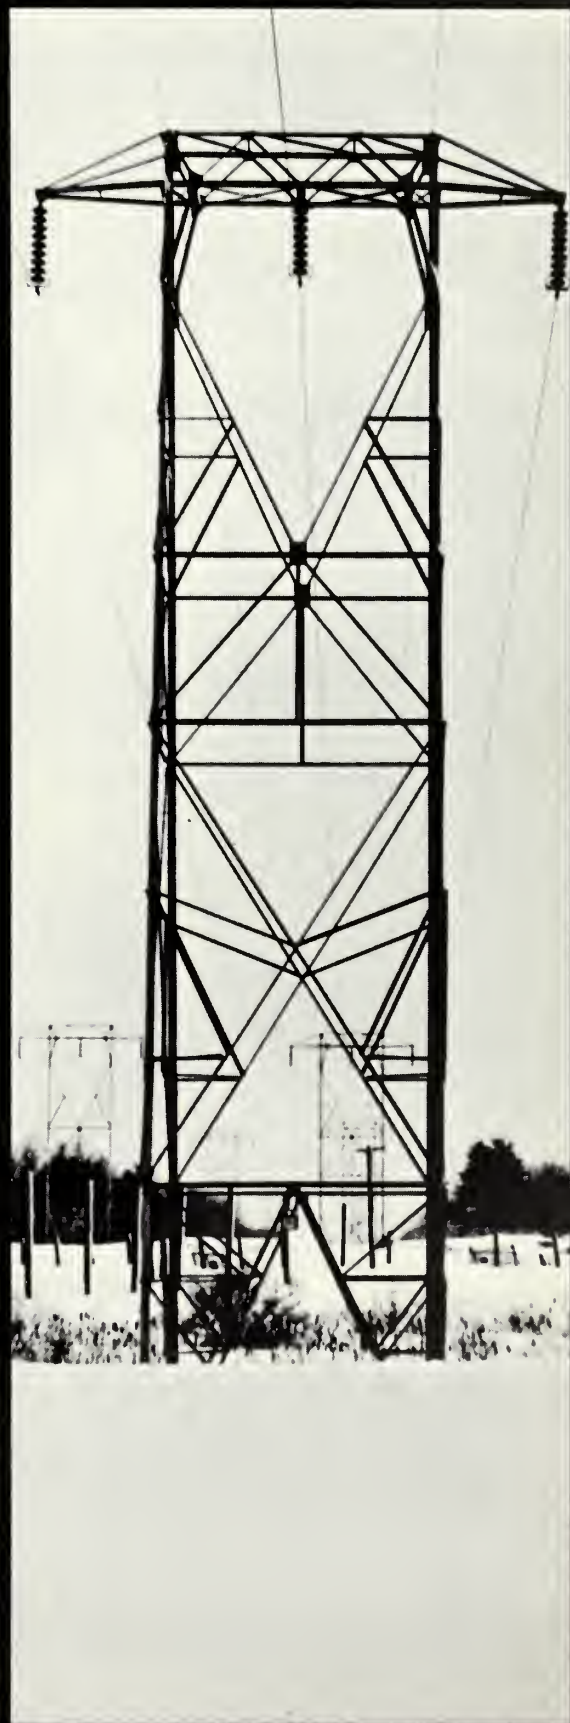

john lennon

however, where does our environment end?
are we solely the products of our town?
are we not part of a universal environment?
of other people
and other places
and other ways of life?
do we not share with the rest of the world, and its institutions?

how can we be isolated?
our electronic media bombard us in high frequency stereo or twenty one inches of living color they bring us the word and the influences the joy of rock music or the horror of weekly vietnam death tolls

we are not alone!

for most of us our isolation is physical but it is in physical comfort yet can we afford to be unaware of conditions elsewhere in our town?

in our country?

in our world?

yes, our world!

our world environment

and our world awareness to assume our world responsibilities to the world of man, all men.

for in reality how far apart are these worlds?

and there is yet another world within this . . . another influence another experience another life . . .

perhaps the most organized of our worlds.
neat symmetrical scheduled controlled

yet within the structure are all the elements necessary for creative learning.
a communication exists here, a communication that can potentially spread through the community and the world.
it is knowledge, sensitivity, and understanding.
and yet there is a conflict here, for . . .

... every man
beareth the whole stamp of the human condition.
montaigne

IN ONE SCHOOL YEAR THE HIGH SCHOOL CAFETERIA SERVES 15,000 CHEESEBURGERS.

there are other influences here.

we try many things.
we experiment with new loyalties.
we find new enthusiasms.
we try involvement,
and we try escape.

we evaluate
all these things
and then continue
and evaluate again.
it is a lite process.

we are the product of these worlds.
they act on us and we react to them and in the end we are shaped by this interaction.

it forms our thought patterns, beliefs, ideals, and even our fantasies. what are these thoughts going to be?
what kind of people are we going to be? where will our sensitivities lie? what will our priorities be?

in a world where we should care, what are we going to really care about? and if through this interaction we can actually determine all these factors, how are we going to express ourselves?

we can express ourselves with our eyes.
we can express ourselves with our hands.
we can express ourselves with our voices.
we can express ourselves with our writings.

we must express ourselves with our commitments.

lie

will our committments lie in viet nam?

or chicago?

will we be committed to join with our neighbors and friends for the equality of man?

these decisions are ours.
they must be made,
and there is a last alternative . . .

we can ignore our committments.

cause he gets up in the morning and he goes to work at nine and he comes back home at five-thirty gets the same train every time cause his world is built on punctuality. it never fails.

and his mother goes to meetings while his father calls the maid and she serves him tea with councilmen while discussing foreign trade and she passes looks as well as milk to every suave young man.

and he likes his own back yard and he likes his fancy vest cause he's better than the rest and his arm sweat smells the best and he hopes to grab his father's loot and make it pass his own.

and he pays a call to charles and he goes to a regatta he adores the girl next door cause he's dying to get at her but his mother knows the best about the matrimonial states and he's oh so good and he's oh so fine and he's oh so healthy in his body and his mind he's a well respected man about town doing the best things so conservatively.

the kinks

there is another search.

when the truth is found to be lies and all the world within you dies don't you want somebody to love don't you need somebody to love wouldn't you love somebody to love you better find somebody to love silently hiding her green thumb from most, and camouflaged as our librarian, mrs. eisenhaure has single-handedly created the floral beauty surrounding our building. during the late afternoon she can be seen secretly watering, planting, and trimming. bringing beauty to our school she has gone unrecognized too long.

we thank you, our flower lady!

time it was,
and what a time it was,
it was . . .
a time of innocence,
a time of confidences.
long ago . . . it must be . . .
i have a photograph.
preserve your memories;
they're all that's left you.

the young incredibles, composed of gum, energy, ideas, rebellion and a little dab of brylcream, as diversified in type as in number, they range from the floating inevitables to marlboro man, from blue miss fantasy to man from glad. they include plastic pam, disposable dan, magnetic mike and clinton, the american dream. they survive on chocolate noodles and electric kool aid. flick the switch and they turn on to the fantasy world we all live in.

it's an eleanor rigby world, a world of peppermint pencils with emeraldine erasers, a world of highway 28 that doesn't go anywhere, the education scene, where teachers, emanating thermonuclear thought waves, drop idea dust on exposed portions of youth-type heads, a world where the joys of life hide in a locker, and in the a-wing to c-wing four minute mile.

well i try my best to be just like i am,
but everybody wants
you to be just like them.
they say
sing while you slave,
and i just get bored.

go if you're able;
life's very unstable;
it's built upon sand.

gotta get together now, gotta get together
one by one

the rascals

just outside my wisdom are words that would answer everything.

a beautiful person
is a beautiful thought, a living soul
unhung, uncaught.

your own thing

i used to get mad at my school. the teachers who taught me weren't cool you're holding me down, turning me round, filling me up with your rules.
i've got to admit it's getting better, a little better all the time.
